

Project Crossovers

Friday 8th March 2013

PMZ is an amazing place to work, I'm so lucky! I have actually said "I think this is the best place I've ever worked" much to the amusement of my boss. But actually, here at PMZ there's this incredible BUZZ. It feels really really comfortable being here.

Apart from that, I LOVE hearing music going on around me such a lot of the time. Even when there's no group in the main hall (I work right next door) there's very often someone practising on the piano, or working out some chords on a guitar. It's lovely and homely.

Magical Babies

A special time this week was when I went into the SMS room (with Teri taking the session) with babies. I love babies anyway so was really happy when Teri invited me to join the group. What I noticed was the effect that the music, lights, sounds and rhythms had on the babies. It's magical! Sometimes the adults sing along and sometimes there are just varied musical sounds going on, and those little people are enraptured and totally absorbed. They might either lie and watch what's going on around them, or (maybe if they're a bit bigger) join in with bangs, tinkles, etc using some of the many baby-friendly music-making instruments in there. Maybe they are some of the great musicians of the future!

Fabuloso!
